AXA Bank Belgium SA changes its company name into AXA Bank Europe SA.

This name change of the legal entity AXA Bank Belgium into AXA Bank Europe (in short: AXA Banque or AXA Bank) was ratified by an Extraordinary General Meeting on 17 April 2008, and is accompanied by a change in the address of the bank's head office: formerly based at Grotesteenweg 214, 2600 Antwerp, the head office of AXA Bank Europe is now located at Boulevard du Souverain 25, 1170 Brussels.

As announced in December 2007, the creation of AXA Bank Europe follows on from the decision of the AXA Group to coordinate all of its banking services for individuals in Europe via one unique banking platform – AXA Bank Europe – that will work in close cooperation with its local insurance companies. Today, AXA provides retail banking services in Germany, Belgium, France and Hungary.

The objective of these banking operations is to complement the AXA Financial Protection offering with a range of retail banking products, while ensuring adequate development, control and risk management at a European level.

As regards AXA's banking activities in Belgium, this change of name will have no other impact on legal, financial, accounting or commercial terms. AXA Bank's Belgian customers are therefore in no way affected by this purely legal development.
